

Myrtle rust science stocktake

A list of past and current research focused on biology, impacts and management of myrtle rust is now available on the Ngā Koiora Tuku Iho website.

This updated stocktake builds on work previously undertaken by the BioHeritage Challenge and the Ministry for Primary Industries, and the current version has been collated with assistance from the Department of Conservation and MPI.

Let them know there are missing projects that others might be interested in hearing about. The list will be updated from time to time in an effort to avoid duplication of research effort and to foster collaboration.
